Electives for the Finance Area of Emphasis

The following management studies courses qualify to be the elective for a finance area of emphasis:

Mgt. Studies 252: Legal Aspects of Business

Mgt. Studies 256: Entreprenuership Mgt. Studies 250: Marketing AND

Mgt. Studies 251: Management (must take both courses to fulfill the elective)

The following economics courses also qualify to be the elective for a finance area of emphasis. The course must be taken solely for the purpose of completeing the finance area of emphasis and cannot also count toward the economics major.

Economics 371: Economics of Public Policy

Economics 374: Money & Banking

Economics 382: International Economics

Economics 385: Introduction to Econometrics

If you plan to use one of the above Level III economics courses as the elective for your finance area of emphasis, you MUST meet with a Management Studies Advisor to be sure that your proposed set of five courses fulfills the requirements for the finance area of emphasis.

Here is an example of how one of the above economics courses could count for the elective:

A student takes International Economics and Money & Banking to fulfill the minimum requirement of two Level III economics courses required for the economics major. She also takes two Level II courses, Urban Economics and History of Economic Thought. She could now choose between Economics 371 or 385 to fulfill the elective for a finance area of emphasis.
